Leadership Styles

There is no leadership style that is better than the other. Each one can effectively lead with proper training.

1

Trailblazer

- These individuals are leaders who make their presence known by bringing in new ideas and solutions

2

Connector

- These individuals are leaders that want to create one on one connections with their group and bring cohesion to the team

3

Anchor

- These individuals are leaders that create a stable environment. They make their team feel as one well oiled machine and are trusted by their team.

4

Strategist

- These individuals are leaders who ensure there is clear instructions and want their team to know exactly what is going on by being a leader who gives clear instruction.

Why is Leadership Training Needed?

Many organizations have little to no women holding top positions. These roles are often held by men. By empowering women to reach leadership roles through specialized personality training, we are getting more women through the door.

The Goals

When the participant joins this training, the end goal is to reach your leadership potential. However, this goal must be achieved by setting and accomplishing small goals and tasks. We have set up a plan that covers one month. This will help you reflect and decide what type of leader one can become through self awareness, communication, and behavior.

The Steps

We have identified five steps that one can help elevate executive presence. Reflection, observe, adapt, communicate and lead. By considering these steps, a participant looks within and is able to understand how their own actions and thoughts effect their work style. When this is considered, an individual is able to then begin to change habits and communicate on what is needed. This will lead to the participant able to effectively lead.

Training

The Assessments

- Taking the DISC and the Communicore assessment tool to further understand what your personality and leadership types are. This allows you to gain a deeper understanding into your work style.

The Training

- The training manual covers 30 days. Here one is able to complete tasks related to building oneself up. This will be done through journal entries, assessments, lectures and lectures.
